I sit her unnoticed, thoughts running through my mind
I know I'm a girl, but i'm also a mastermind.
Make sure I'm equal to him
Or 'imma' play dirty until I win.

Don't tell me or my sisters that we can't,
Or the wish or a revolution we grant.
We will shatter these glass ceilings,
Men we come to do some killing.

We are equal to man.
And we won't be referred to as a caveman.
We are our own generation come to our feet.
Because we will release the female fleet.

We earn less money for harder work
Let's tell our queen, give us some money our monarch.
We bleed tears from those dirty words,
So don't bother telling us we are unwanted hazards.

Everyday I sink to the floor,
Dreading the first step through the door.
I already know i'm judged
And oh no my makeup is smudged.

For an hour at dawn, I paint myself.
Now tell me which magazine goes on the special shelf.
I am bombarded by hate and cruelty,
So much that I feel empty.

I'm your princess come save me,
Curvy, hourglass tell me I'm pretty.
Puff up my lips so I can't talk,
Wear heels so high that I can't walk.

Wear french braids and try to throw a ball,
When you laugh at my horrendous fall.
You say I 'run like a girl'
And when I'm in a dress you make me twirl.

I am not a toy to play with to dress up and scare,
I am not a toy to play with so please be aware.
I am a lawyer and i will kick your butt,
So much that you will regret it from your gut.

Like unicorns, Be dainty, Be skinny
Be a girlfriend but don't be clingy. Be a mom become a housewife
After all that's all girls can do with their life.

Let me tell you something you horrible friend.

The End

So next time you need me i won't be there.

I'm a sister so definitely be scared.

Before you know it's happily ever after,

Now you know feminism is the answer.
