

Dear Parent/Guardian

National Anti-Bullying Week 2025 – Odd Socks Day, Monday 10 November

Next week marks National Anti-Bullying Week, beginning on Monday 10 November, and we are looking forward to taking part in a range of activities that promote kindness, respect, and inclusion within our school community.

To launch the week, we will be holding an ‘Odd Socks Day’ on Monday. This is a fun and simple way to celebrate individuality and remind everyone that we are all unique. We would love as many students as possible to take part by wearing odd socks to school—no donations are required, just enthusiasm and a willingness to get involved!

In preparation for the week, all students have attended an Anti-Bullying Assembly, during which we have explored:

- What bullying is and how it differs from falling out or disagreement.
- The different roles people may play in bullying situations.
- The impact and risks of online bullying.
- How to report any concerns and access support within school.
- External websites and charities that offer further advice and support.

The theme for this year’s Anti-Bullying Week is ‘Power for Good’. This theme was developed by the Anti-Bullying Alliance, which coordinates the campaign each year across England, Wales, and Northern Ireland. Following consultation with teachers and pupils, the theme aims to empower young people to take positive action to counter the harm and hurt that bullying can cause.

Building on the success of last year’s campaign—when over 80% of schools took part, reaching more than 7.5 million children and young people—this year’s focus encourages everyone to use their Power for Good to speak out, support others, and help create a world where kindness prevails.

We hope that this week encourages open conversations at home and reinforces our shared commitment to ensuring every student feels safe, respected, and valued.

Thank you, as always, for your continued support.

Yours sincerely

Miss Burns
Deputy Headteacher
